Considerations for February 2026 Pattern Clearing Class
RECOGNIZING AND RESPONDING TO THOUGHT FORMS WITHIN MY MIND NOW

Difficult for me to do this consciously as there are too many thoughts floating around for me to deal with now / Thoughts just happen and I have nothing to do with creating them now / I only notice my thoughts when I believe they are actually playing some important role in what I desire to create now / I tend to ignore any thoughts that I believe play an insignificant role in my experience and/or creation now / Tendency to believe that my mind generates thoughts randomly, or in response to my experience of the moment, and that I have no conscious responsibility for these actions in my mind now / It is too much for me to be aware of what I am thinking, of what is flowing through my mind now / Tendency to become victimized by my thoughts, if I become aware of thinking something that I do not want to think about now / Tendency to believe that most thoughts have no creative effect upon me or my experiences now / I have heard that thoughts participate in the creation of my experience, but I tend to dismiss this idea now / Difficult for me to respect the power of my thoughts when I think they are just "mind play," and are not really engaged in anything that I can see, hear or touch now / Tendency to believe that there are thoughts that are important to pay attention to, and there are thoughts are not, and it is my job to decide this now / I already believe that I am the creator of what I think, so what more is there to do in this area now? / Tendency to forget that I have unconscious thoughts which are affecting my experiences – inwardly and "outside" of what I perceive to be "me," and that these show up in my mirrors, and I am pretending that they are not MY thoughts now
